COOLIDGE BEGINS
ADMINISTRATION
AS PRESIDENT

First Act of Chief Executive Is To Proclaim Next Friday As Day of Nation-wide Mourning for Late President

PERSONNEL OF FEDERAL GOV-ERNMENT REMAINS UNCHANGED

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—President Coolidge began his administration as thirtieth chief magistrate today designating next Friday, funeral day of President Harding as one of nation-wide mourning. He also announced the personnel of the Federal government as passed to him by his predecessor would remain unchanged for the present.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—A proclamation, the first official act of President Coolidge, calling on the country to observe next Friday as a day of mourning and prayer when President Harding will be buried at Marion, recites: "I earnestly recommend to the people to assemble on this day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow in submission to the will of Almighty God and to pay out of a full heart, homage, love and reverence to the memory of the great and good President whose death was so sorely smitten us."

Before retiring last night he conferred with Secretary Hughes and Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican whip. He intended to remain in Washington until the body of Mr. Harding arrived from San Francisco, Tuesday, and go to Marion, Ohio, for the burial.

The new president arose bright and early this morning and was at his desk by 9 o'clock. Mail, accumulating during his vacation in New England and conferences on Mr. Harding's funeral arrangements will absorb his attention.

Coolidge's exodus from Plymouth was so sudden that the president has not yet received messages of congratulations from his two sons, John and Calvin, Jr., John, who is 17, is attending the Citizens' Military training camp at Camp Devens, Mass., Calvin, Jr., a few years younger, left several days ago for the Coolidge home at Northampton, Mass., planning to earn spending money during his vacation by working on a farm.

LONGEST EVER HELD IN COUNTY

The trial of Henry Williams, charged with killing Deputy Sheriff Bill Atkins near Four Mile a few weeks ago, was one of the longest ever held at the Pineville court house, it is said. It lasted about seven days and one hundred and twenty-five witnesses were examined. Guyman Williams, brother of the defendant who was acquitted Thursday, is now held under bond and will be tried later on similar charges.

The Commonwealth sought to establish as a motive for the killing the fact that Deputy Atkins had killed Albert Williams, a nephew of the defendant, a few months ago while in the discharge of his duty. The prosecution was represented by Jim Golden and Ben Golden. The defense was represented by James Bingham, E. Philpot and Attorney Bingham.

ABOLITION OF DEATH PENALTY
BRINGS INCREASE IN CRIME

By Associated Press

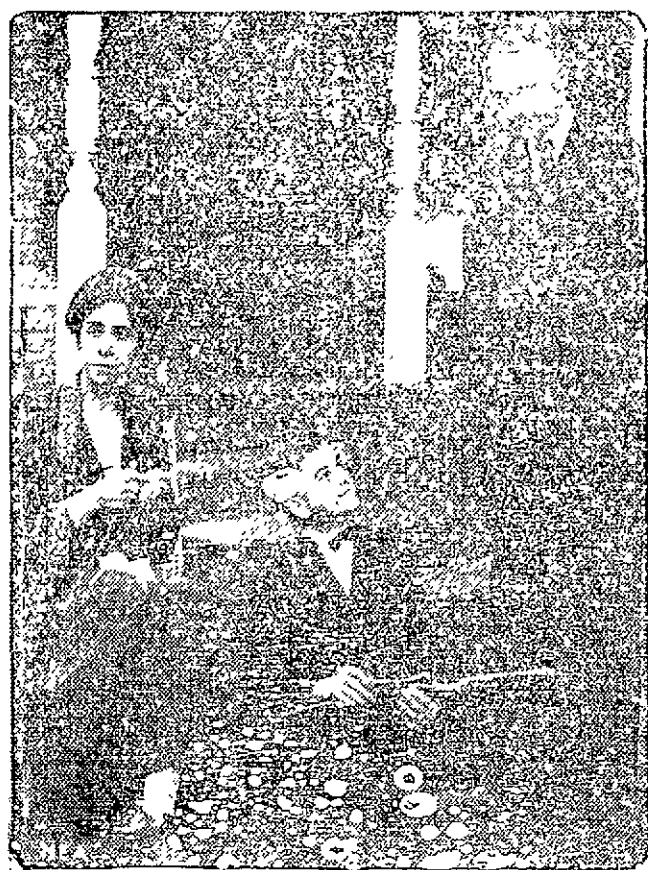

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 1.—Argentina abolished the death penalty from the penal code about a year ago, and since then there has been a noticeable increase in crimes of violence in this city. The question of restoring the death penalty has arisen, and a bill to this end has been introduced in Congress.

Large numbers of emigrants from Europe, many of them belonging to the criminal classes, have come to Argentina recently, and the present crime wave is attributed to this undesirable element.

MACHINERY FOR
ICE CREAM PLANT

Purchase Yesterday of $12,000 to $15,000 Worth of Goods—Organization Not Yet Complete

Machinery for the proposed ice cream plant was bought yesterday, according to Judge J. L. Manning. It was purchased from the Westlier-Campbell company and will cost from $12,000 to $15,000.

The old K U building adjoining the new ice plant will, in all probability, be used for the new plant, though the deal for it has not been completed yet in case it is used it will be thoroughly remodeled.

Organization of the firm is not complete and no name has been given it though the machinery was purchased in the name of Manning and Watt. The machinery will be shipped in thirty days and it is thought that the plant will be in operation in sixty days.

"There is no reason why we can't manufacture ice cream here just as well as they can anywhere in the world," stated Judge Manning, "for we are getting the very latest in equipment. We will install an air filtering plant, thus making even the air that comes in contact with the cream absolutely pure. We will also have a hardening room where the ice cream will be kept in a temperature of five degrees below zero."

Machinery from the old plant is being moved today. Some of it is in good condition and will be used at the new plant.

ETHEL MAE ELY DIES
AT HOME HERE TODAY

Miss Ethel Mae Ely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Ely, died at 7:30 o'clock this morning at their residence. She was born May 9, 1903, and was twenty years old at the time of her death. Funeral services will be at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon at the First Baptist Church the Rev. Sam P. Martin officiating. Interment will be at the Elm cemetery near Arthur, Tenn.

Miss Ely had been ill thirty-one days, yet her death was sudden as she had greatly improved and had seemed in a fair way to recover. There were three physicians attending her and everything that skilled medical aid could accomplish was done for her.

Miss Ely was a young lady of many excellent qualities and has a large circle of friends who mourn her death. She was a devoted member of the First Baptist Church as are both of her parents, and she was very active in the Sunday School work of the church. She is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Ely, two sisters, Lillian and Azalea, and one brother, James, all of whom were at her bedside when the end came.

REFUSE PARK FOR SUNDAY BASEBALL

Chief Ball Says Public Opinion Against Such Use—May Have Other Days

The question of using the East End park recently acquired by the city for Sunday baseball games was brought before Chief H. E. Ball by the captain of a local team yesterday. The park is desired on account of its more central location and its adaptability for baseball by the Twenty-first Street and the Junction teams.

Chief Ball refused to grant the request, saying that public opinion would in all probability be against it. He stated, however, that so far as he was concerned it could be used at other times.

The two teams have been playing at the Junction each Sunday since last spring. The games have created a great deal of public interest, their crowds being drawn from all parts of the city. George Woody, formerly a professional, is now with the West End team.

YELLOW CREEK MINERS BALK
ON INSURANCE AGREEMENT

Employees of the Yellow Creek mines were not working this week on account of a cat shortage, according to a statement made by an official of the Long Mountain Coal company this morning. Some of the men quit because it was necessary for them to sign an agreement relative to the new insurance proposition to remain, he explained.

The agreement which is known as a "yellow dog" by union miners contains no provisions regarding wage scales or working conditions, according to the officials. It provides that men work there two months before becoming beneficiaries of the new insurance, this applying, of course, to men subsequently employed.

The mines are working today, the cat shortage having been remedied. The percent of men who have left their employment on account of the agreement is negligible, officials stated, and will not seriously affect the operation of the mines.

U. OF K. SUMMER SCHOOL
INCREASES HUNDRED PUPILS

By Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1.—An increase of approximately 100 pupils over the number in summer school last year was noted in the registration of the University of Kentucky for this summer, according to Wellington Patrick director. The session which opened June 25 had an enrollment of 743, which was the largest in the history of the university.

Every year since the establishment of the summer school the enrollment has increased. The sessions are held to enable teachers, students, supervisors or administrators to obtain special work in various branches of education. The special registration for the second term which begins August 6, showed 130 students signed up. Classes in the second session will be conducted in the subjects taught in the college of Arts and Science.

LIGHT VOTE IN
PRIMARIES CAST
IN CITY TODAY

Less Than Two Hundred Democrats
Voted Before 2 p. m., On State Candidates—Railroad Commissioner Only G. O. P.
Contest

CANTRILL AND BARKLEY
BOTH CLAIM VICTORY

A very light vote was cast in the primary here today, only 187 Democrats and sixty-four Republicans having voted in the four city precincts at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Only a few women voted.

The Republican ballot contained only the names of the aspirants for the candidacy for railroad commissioner and the name of Joe F. Bosworth, for representative. Though he did not have an opponent, his name was placed on the ballot to prevent any misunderstanding in places where it is not generally known that his opponent has withdrawn.

The heaviest vote was polled in the West End precinct where the primary was held in Heaton's electrical shop. Seventy Democrats and thirty-three Republicans had voted here at 2 o'clock. The number of votes at other precincts follow: South Side, Democrats, forty; Republicans, eleven. City Hall, Democrats, twenty-three; Republicans four. Opera House, Democrats, fifty-four; Republicans, sixteen.

In many cases the election officers who had been appointed had, for various reasons, failed to serve and other men were substituted. Those who actually served in the primary today were: West End, B. H. Perkins and T. J. Henderson, judges; Frank Konrath clerk and Speed Marsee, sheriff. Opera House, R. W. Oaks and R. L. Maddox, judges; L. K. Rice, clerk and J. W. Cunningham, sheriff. South Side, Chief H. E. Ball and J. H. McGiboney, judges; J. H. McGiboney, Jr., clerk and H. B. Foley, sheriff. City Hall, T. S. Gibson and W. G. Collier, judges; T. A. Philpot, clerk and Harison Ansmus, sheriff.

Things have been remarkably quiet around the voting places. There has apparently been little interest in the primary. Election officers were of the opinion that the votes could be counted and reported to headquarters at Pineville within thirty minutes after the closing of the polls at 4 o'clock.

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 1.—Reports from over the state indicated a light vote in today's Democratic primary. Rains at Paducah, Owensboro and North Christian county kept many voters from the polls. In Louisville voting was light. Campaign managers of both Allen Barkley and Campbell Cantrill, opposed candidates, continued to claim victory by large majorities.

By Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 4.—With both candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor claiming victory by majorities ranging from 12,000 to 17,000 and the candidates for the minor offices boasting of certain success, Kentuckians of Democratic faith will go to the polls Wednesday to select a ticket to oppose that named in the Republicans in convention June 26.

Interest runs high as to the chances.

SENATOR FESS
GIVES ADDRESS
ON LINCOLN

Ohio Man Commencement Speaker at
L. M. U. Last Night—High Class Musical Program Given

FESS WAS INTIMATE
FRIEND OF HARDING

HARRIGATE, Tenn., Aug. 4.—New angles on the life of Lincoln were presented by Senator S. D. Fess, of Ohio, in his address at the summer commencement exercises of Lincoln Memorial University last night. Senator Fess has made a close study of the life of Lincoln, having gone over practically all the ground where Lincoln lived and moved, and he was able to entertain his audience with an eloquent and interesting address. In addition to telling many anecdotes of Lincoln's early life, he explained where he lay his greatness. The outstanding points of greatness were in his ability to use people, and his faith in the people as well as his faith in God.

Senator Fess stated that he was so depressed as a result of the death of President Harding that he was unable to speak as he would like to. He said that he had been a close and intimate friend of the President for thirty-five years. He first received the news of the President's death at the Gibson Hotel, in Cincinnati, and after the first few minutes of the shock, he was at first inclined to cancel his speaking engagement at the University. But when he realized he could not be of any service and after having sent Mrs. Harding a message of condolence, he decided to continue his trip.

After the address of Senator Fess, President B. O. Matthews of the University conferred the degrees and presented the diplomas on the graduates of the University. The following students graduated from the college department: John Odus Sharp, A. B., Wade A. Sowers, A. B., Perry DeBuck, A. B., Annie Mae Gross, A. B., R. K. Kiecklighter, A. B. The following students were graduated from the academy department: Minnie Mae Edlins, Roy Ownby, Lillian Rice, Riley Shanks, W. P. Middleton, N. C. Watts, Adelle Davis, Dais Ansmus, Burl L. Johnson.

The musical numbers were of an unusually high character. A vocal quartet was rendered by students of the Music Department, with Miss Otella Overton as the soprano soloist. Miss Gertrude Gray of Knoxville gave a beautiful violin selection. Mrs. T. R. Hill and Mrs. J. W. Charlton of Middlesboro sang in a charming manner, "Carmenella Waltz Song." The program was closed by a piano duet by Miss Bessie Smith, teacher of music at the University and Miss Hattie Edds.

W. T. HAYNES' STORE AND HOUSE
AT JUNCTION BURN LAST NIGHT

The residence and store of W. T. Haynes at the Junction were destroyed by fire of unknown origin about 11 o'clock last night. The damage is estimated at $1,000. It is not known whether or not it is covered by insurance.

The fire originated in the store, the cause being unknown. The fire department was called but the flames had gained a headway in the store and spread to the residence nearby. The efforts of the fire fighters were concentrated on saving the adjoining houses which they succeeded in doing. The household goods of Mr. Haynes' residence and the goods of the store are reported to have been lost in the conflagration.

JOHN MILLER'S ARM IS BROKEN CRANKING CAR

John Miller broke his arm at the wrist while cranking a car late Thursday afternoon. There were two women in the car whose names he did not know. They requested him to start the engine which backfired, causing the injury. He went immediately to the hospital after the injury where the wound was treated.

ROAD MEETING PLANNED
IN DANVILLE THIS MONTH

By Associated Press

DANVILLE, Ky., Aug. 1.—Plans for a meeting of road advocates have some time this month are being worked out by W. O. McIntyre, Sam H. Nichols and Charles L. Henderson, representative of the chamber of commerce. The meeting will be held to create interest in the proposed road from Danville to the Tennessee state line.

Delegations from Lincoln, Casey, Russell, Clinton and Adams counties have been invited. The members of the State Highway Commission also have been sent invitations and the meeting probably will be held at such time as is convenient for them to attend. A banquet and other entertainment is being planned for the visiting delegates.

Federal Government Leave Nothing
Undone to Make Funeral Adequate Expression of Nation's Grief; Three Ceremonials

MRS. HARDING BEARS UP
WELL UNDER STRAIN

By Associated Press

Board Harding Funeral Train, Roseville, Calif., Aug. 4.—Sorrow in the hearts of the American people over the death of their leader was exemplified today by silent groups along the railroad side as the special train bearing the body of Warren G. Harding traversed the wide reaches of Nevada. With bowed heads they stood, sometimes in groups of hundreds, some times only a score and sometimes singly. They were conspicuous only in showing their sorrows, but to these on the funeral train they typified the American peoples a whole.

Mrs. Harding continued to bear up well under the strain and was still as determined as she was on Thursday evening that she wouldn't break down. She retired early last night, temporarily exhausted by the ordeal of the day.

By Associated Press

On Board Harding Funeral Train, Sparks, Nevada, Aug. 4.—The special train bearing the body of President Harding paused here a few minutes today before speeding on the long journey. Here, as at every station they passed during the night, silent men, women and children gathered, with heads bowed. Mrs. Harding rested as well last night as could be expected.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Nothing possible of accomplishment by the Federal government will be left undone to make the funeral of President Harding an adequate expression of the nation's grief. Ceremonials will be divided into three parts: the first to be private, a squadron of cavalry and a battalion of field artillery will escort the body to the White House when it arrives Tuesday and will be followed by President Coolidge and other high officials. The body will rest in the east room until Thursday when it will be escorted to the capitol with a military escort with many fraternal and civic groups in line. The third part of the ceremony will be the transfer of the body to Marion, Ohio, for burial. There it will be met by a military escort and civic organizations. President Coolidge will accompany it on the last journey.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

When 100,000,000 Americans awoke
yesterday morn to find that President Harding had died in San Francisco and that Calvin Coolidge had been sworn in as President of the United States at Plymouth, Vt., at the other side of the continent, the shock sustained was solely one of sorrow for President Harding, stricken so suddenly, and for Mrs. Harding, courageous under the blow. There is perhaps none among students of government and observers of men in public life who felt for a moment that there could have been in the office of Vice President under President Harding a man more suited than Calvin Coolidge to take up the reins of government which fate struck so unexpectedly from the nerveless hands of the Chief Magistrate who but yesterday seemed safely upon the highroad to complete and early recovery.
Rarely has a Presidential ticket been more clearly strengthened by the selection of the best among available and acceptable men than the Harding ticket was strengthened by the name of Calvin Coolidge. It was predicted by enthusiastic advocates of Mr. Coolidge that the office of Vice President, considered generally the position of presiding officer in the Senate and the chief appellate merely, would assume new importance because of his incumbency. That was, of course, impossible.
But it was fortunate that a man so safe and sane, so studious and well balanced, so free from disabling egotism and alarming eccentricity, was elected to the Vice Presidency. Even at the moment, when inhibits must,
in the natural course, dwell with solemnity and sorrow upon the passing of President Harding, the lesson as to the immense importance of wise selection of men by both political parties, as nominees for the Vice Presidency should be driven home to the many who are accustomed, flippancy, to refer lightly to the office next in line, and because of its potentiality, next in importance to that of the President.
If the Secretary of State, for example, is removed by death or otherwise, the President who appointed him remaining in office, his successor's selection is in the hands of the executive who selected him. A change in the office is governed as to its character by the President who chooses another individual to his liking. The rule holds as to an entire cabinet. But when a Vice President succeeds a President there is a new administration.
It is, therefore, of vast importance that the Vice President be, in every administration, a man who could advance to the position of his superior without anxiety being felt as to what his advancement would mean.
Mr. Coolidge as President will have,
as a matter of course, new proportions and possibilities as a figure in national politics, with the next presidential race in the near future. The fact will not prevent disinterested Democrats, Republicans and Independents from finding consolation in the fact that a man of his character and attainments was elected Vice President upon the ticket with Warren G. Harding, whose death is everywhere deplored.—Louisville Times.

AMERICA'S 65 PER CENT FIRST MORTGAGE

The annual taxes paid in the United States, national and local, on property and income, direct and indirect, are equal to the burden of a mortgage on all the property of the United States to the amount of sixty-five per cent of its valuation bearing interest at 5 per cent.
This tax mortgage is a prior lien to the other mortgages. It encumbers the property which is free from other debts and it is an additional burden to the property covered with other debts.
This statement is very easily proved.
A fair conservative valuation of the property in the United States is $200, 000,000,000.00. The annual taxes, national, state and local, are approximately $8,500,000,000.00. A mortgage of 65 per cent of the value of $200 billion dollars would be 130 billion dollars. Interest at 5 per cent of the 130 billion dollars mortgage would be $6, 500,000,000.00—exactly the same as the taxes paid annually.
Some people think they do not pay any of this tax because they do not pay it to tax collectors and get a receipt. In this they are mistaken. All consumers pay taxes in the form of higher rents or higher prices for food, clothing and luxuries.
Owners of tax-exempt bonds are the ones who escape taxation. The big 65 per cent mortgage rests on the shoulders of all of the rest of us. That mortgage is growing heavier every year.
The general burden of national, state and local taxation has increased 134 per cent—more than doubled—since 1912. Payor taxes have increased 126 per cent since 1914. Tax-exempt bonds have not paid one cent of this increased burden.
The amount of tax-exempt bonds increases every year. The taxation mortgage grows bigger every year.
If the future issues of bonds are made subject to income taxes, the debt
can be reduced and the taxes made lighter.
It is up to American taxpayers and consumers to decide whether they will permit a bad condition to grow worse, or insist that a change be made for the better by taxing bonds now exempt.

CONTINUATION OF LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO MR. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

Just when I reached the point in my letter where I told you I opened the door into the hall, this morning, I was called to consult again with Dr. Sam-

No, dear, I did not go to the Chil-

for although you will hardly believe it, as I opened that door last night to go across the hall I found, lying in a softly lined basket, a beautiful baby boy.
I gazed! And rushing back, carried the child into Jack's room.
"Look here, boy," I said, "Look what I have found just outside your door."
Jack seemed utterly surprised and asked the usual stupid question, "Why,
who put it there?"
"I don't know, Jack. Probably some woman has heard about Leslie's illness,
and how we were going to find a child
for her and thought it would be a splendid place for her own baby. Poor woman! She probably could not care for it. Isn't he a beauty?"
I picked the baby out of that basket.
It was evidently about six weeks
old, dressed in very nice, delicate, hand-made clothes. Its mother must have been a fine needle-woman.
It opened its eyes and looked at us.
For Jack was bending over my shoulder with his face close to the baby's face, and I was looking at them both.
I became almost hysterical, for at that moment each of them—the man and the baby—twitched up the left side of his mouth and giggled his nose in a ridiculous manner. I had never noticed that Jack did that before, and when I saw it duplicated on the wee features of that baby it seemed something almost unmeaning.
Jack put out his hand and touched the baby's mouth; then picked it up one of its tiny hands, the fingers of which clapsed around his like tendrils.
"My dear, I said, "it is Providence—
nothing else."
"Do you think she'll like him?" asked Jack. "He seems pretty nice, don't a flashlight on without worrying."

you think? But why in thunder should any woman leave a baby at our door?"
he inquired.
It seemed to me, however, perfectly simple, for of course the papers had been full of Leslie's illness and how she was grieving for her baby.
We went at once for Dr. Samson, and he advised us immediately to get a woman who was trained in children's nursing; in fact, he offered to go to the hospital and send one that he thought was at liberty.
After this happened, of course, there was no sleep for either Jack or me.
Jack hung over the baby, for hours.
He seemed to be afraid that it would fly away, and once he declared that he knew it was not breathing. If the child had been his own he could not have been more solicitous. He seemed to feel that in some way fate had solved all his troubles and that Leslie would be as delighted as he the moment she saw the child.
He had the right intuition, Joe, for the moment the nurse which Dr. Samson sent us took the baby in to Leslie's room perforce lit up with a radiant smile.
"Bring him to me—bring him to me
quickly," she said. "Where did you get him?"
We told her the entire truth, she interrupting with little gurgles of happiness as she held the child to her breast.
"Oh I can keep him—Jack—can't I keep him?" she asked.
"Of course you can, my dear. You could keep him if he were twins, if it made you happy. You cannot know how I have agonized over you all these weeks."
"Have I been ill weeks?" she asked
in surprise.
"Yes, dear, but it is all over now.
Fate has brought you this baby and the baby has brought you back to me."

Adventures of The Twins

"The first person I wish you would look for," said King Snookums to the Twins, "is my lord high chancellor.
His name is Codger. Mister Lord High Chancellor Codger. Like the rest of my silly subjects, he got the craze for riding lightning bugs. And now he's plumb disappointed. We can't find him anywhere in Pee Wee Land. And I used him sadly as I have to make a new law and need him to write it out for me."
"Oh, we'll find him never fear."
And there stood a large cake with
white icing and a lump in the middle!
"Help! Help!" the lump was calling
and moving ever so little. "The icing
has got hard and I can't get out!
Help!"
Sure enough, it was the lord high
chancellor of Pee Wee Land.
The Twins got him out of that and hustled him home in a jiffy.
(To Be Continued)

"All right, said Nick. "We'll find him. With our magic shoes we can go anywhere, and we'll hunt in all the kitchens and pantries and cake boxes and pastry shops and candy stores."
Away they went then and it wasn't two minutes till they came to Mrs.
Thingumadadger's house.
Mrs. Thingumadadger had been baking. Anyone could in four blocks tell that. Such a smell you never smelled.
So the Twins went straight for her pastry shelf.
And there stood a large cake with
white icing and a lump in the middle!
"Help! Help!" the lump was calling
and moving ever so little. "The icing
has got hard and I can't get out!
Help!"
Sure enough, it was the lord high
chancellor of Pee Wee Land.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

A BALLAD OF AN EMPTY STOMACH
By Berton Braley
The world is reeking with wrath and woe,
And things are hurrying to decay;
The country's ruined, believe me, boys,
And there's the devil and all to pay!
The skies are sullen and dull and gray.
My prose is thin and it's getting thin-
ner;
However, there is this much to say,
Maybe I'll feel better after dinner!
My foul illusions have lost their glow,
My various idols have feet of clay;
I find existence exceeding slow,
And there's the devil and all to pay!
My hopes seem all of them gone astray
(But it may be due to my carving inner,
So I won't poison myself today),
Maybe I'll feel better after dinner.
For the most of the worries that fret me so
Are due to hunger I can allay,
And though my spirits are falling low
And there's the devil and all to pay,
A steak and some fried potatoes may convince me I am a certain winner:
Though things seem all in a terrible
way,
Maybe I'll feel better after dinner.
ENVOY
So though I'm awfully far from gay,
And there's the devil and all to pay,
And life seems tough to a suffering
sinner,
Maybe I'll feel better—after dinner!

Compensation

To take the broadest view of life. If we but strive to find it. That all our ups and downs be deemed in some way, providential.

I know it's hard thru every trail. At any time and place. Behind a frowning Providence. To see a smiling face.

But every grief its solace has. And but strive to find it. Each earthly pleasure has its pain. Close following behind it.

And so it seems there's little choice. When every thing is odd. Twixt pleasures that are circum-scribed. And grievances condoned. —Unknown

A-Gypsying

I wish we might go gypsying one day before we're old. To step it with the wild west wind And sing the while we go, Through far-forgotten orchards Hung with jewels red and gold: Through cold and fragrant forests where never sun may show, To stand upon a high hill and watch the mist unfold— I wish we might go gypsying one day before we're old.

I wish we might go gypsying, dear lad, the while we care— The while we're heart for hazard-ing. The while we'll to sing, The while we've wit to hear the call And youth and mirth to spare, Before a day may find us too sad for gypsying. Before a day may find us too dull to dream and dare— I wish we might go gypsying, dear lad, the while we care.

GIRL NEMESIS OF RUM RUNNERS SAYS WOMEN MAKE BEST DRY OFFICERS

BAYSHORE, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Women make the best prohibition agents.

So says Miss Isabella Premm, 19-year-old girl who became the nemesis of many rum runners operating along the Long Island shore. During the past three months of her work as prohibition agent she has had enough thrills to satisfy most persons for a lifetime. But she wants more.

"And I'll get 'em, too," she says determinedly. "for the authorities will have to realize soon that they made a mistake when they dropped the women from the force. They are much better agents than men. They are less easily bribed; less easily fooled; less easily shaken from a trail. And besides, they have an unquenchable sense of justice which makes 'em follow up a clue that most men pass up."

Had Knowledge and Nerve
Miss Premm's knowledge of the coast made her a most valuable member of the forces trying to stop the growing rum running off Long Island. And her nerve made her one of the most daring.

Fired at by bootleggers, she began carrying a revolver while on duty. But she says she wasn't afraid.

"Bootleggers are such poor shots," she says. "Their nerves aren't steady—and no wonder, if they drink their own stuff!"

She wouldn't talk about her experiences as long as she was on active duty.

"But now that I'm out of the service temporarily," she said, stressing the adverb, "I may tell how we operated."

"It was my job to scout around from inlet to inlet, keep track of 'suspect' boats going in and out, find out which seaman could steer in the dark, which tracks and bootleggers, help in the seizures, and guard the confiscated liquor or prisoners."

Led Owl's Life
"While I was working I led an owl's life—awake at night and asleep during the day."

Miss Premm's big dark-fringed hazel eyes, twinkled with excitement. Every freckle on her sun-burned face seemed to grow bigger, as she went on:

"The bootleggers took a tremendous interest in me—but it was no greater than I took in them."

"One gallant rum runner threatened to throw me overboard if I came aboard to search his ship."

"Go ahead," I told him. "For I'm swimming."

"I did, and he didn't."

"Once I was loitering around the docks. Some of the bootleggers saw another woman nearby. They thought it was I, so they pushed her into the water. She was the wife of one of the chief rum runners, and there was some row afterwards."

Fearing that her father might object to her joining the service, if she asked for permission, Miss Premm didn't tell him until she had all her papers certified.

"That day," she says, "we captured 'The Virginia' in broad daylight, with 650 cases of the finest whiskey aboard. Then I told my dad, and he was

Prominent Lumberman and Coal Man, Candidate for Railroad Commissioner in Third District

Mr. Gross being a prominent Lumber and Coal dealer, is in touch with the laboring man as well as with the business interests of his district. He is well qualified to fill this important office, and being from Eastern Kentucky will add much strength to the ticket in November. He is a member of one of Kentucky's most prominent Democratic families, and his party will do well to give him this nomination.

He is the kind of man who will greatly appreciate the support and influence of Democrats throughout the district, and having drawn first place on the ballot will be easily found by the Democrats in all parts of the District.

proceed, instead of being angry.

"Once in a while the rum runners had some fairly good ideas. But they never fooled us a second time. Sometimes they'd try to run their liquor in small boats with the water lines painted high. Or they'd try to disguise their boats as fishing smacks or oyster boats. Then sometimes they'd drop fish in the water back of their boats so the gulls would follow it as they do fishing vessels."

"But we would see through all of this, and go after them strong."

INSTITUTION MAY BUY COAL IN OPEN MARKET

By Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 3.—Coal probably will be purchased at the mines for use in the state penal and charitable institutions, R. T. Brewer, secretary of the state board of charities and corrections, said last week.

Contracts recently were made for supplying coal to the state institutions, but the price has dropped below that contract for and purchase on the open market has been decided upon.

Under the contracts entered into the board reserves the right to purchase from other sources, provided at least 20 per cent of the contracted amount is obtained from the coal company holding the contract.

INTEREST IN PRIMARIES

of the various candidates on the eve of the primary. Mild interest has been given way throughout the state to active participation and a substantial vote will be polled, according to political observers.

The issues are clearly defined in the governor's race, J. Campbell Cantrill, Georgetown, is seeking nomination on a platform in which he is opposed on many points by Allen Barkley, Paducah.

Barkley seeks the repeal of the law permitting the use of pari-mutual machines on race tracks; he also favors a percentage of production tax on coal. Cantrill opposes both these plans in the Barkley platform. On roads, schools and order, etc., both candidates occupy practically the same ground. Despite efforts to crowd the race track and coal questions out they are, perhaps the leading issues as the campaign closes.

The campaign has been one of much "mud-slinging" with charges of everything from pre-arranged manipulation to bribery being made by adherents of the candidates. The newspapers of the state have been aligned against one another and the debates in the press have become so heated in many instances that the real issues of the campaign have been somewhat subordinated.

Both Predict Victory

Campaign managers of the two candidates for the governing office have predicted various majorities as the campaign progressed. According to the latest predictions Barkley will win by approximately 25,000 and Cantrill will win by approximately 47,000. Followers of both candidates are prone to cut these figures down considerably, some predicting that the winner will emerge with a majority of 10,000 or 15,000 at the most.

Barkley has ended his campaign in a series of speeches throughout the state, while Cantrill has returned to his headquarters in Louisville to actively direct his campaign's closing.

The day of the election finds both candidates predicting victory. In other offices political guessers have hesitated to pick the winner. The candidates for the minor offices have been waging various sorts of campaigns and all predict that they will be at the head of the list when the vote is counted. All seemingly are aware of the fact that chief interest centers in the race for governor and that they will be able to some forward with a majority if they are able to gather strong support in group of counties. Some of the candidates have centered their energies in our district while others have attempted to cover the entire state.

Three For Lieutenant-Governor

Three candidates have accepted the issue in the race for second place on the Democratic ticket. Henry H. Denhardt, Bowling Green; Alfred E. Strickler, Covington, and L. E. Foster, Hopkinsville, are fighting it out for the lieutenant governorship. Not one of them will concede the least advantage to an opponent and the final count alone will determine the winner.

In the race for secretary of state, the situation presents itself this year with two women entered. This is the first time that a woman has sought election to a minor office on the Democratic ticket and the outcome is being watched with considerable interest. Mrs. Mary E. Flannery, Catlettsburg, who represented Boyd county in the last general assembly was the first woman to serve in the legislature. The other woman candidate for secretary of state is Mrs. Emma Gay Cornwell, Frankfort, former state liberian and an active club woman of the state.

Four for Attorney-General

Four candidates are seeking approval at the polls in the race for attorney general. Frank E. Langherty, Brandenburg; Ryland C. Musick, Jackson; N. B. Hays, Lexington, and John C. Duff, Hopkinsville, are aligned against one another in this race. All are active campaigners and experienced workers in political campaigns and the outcome is much in doubt.

The only candidate unopposed for minor office is W. H. Shanks, Stanford, who will be issued the certificate of nomination as auditor.

Two candidates face the barrier in the treasurer's race. They are Garret L. Withers, Dixon, and Edward B. Dishman, Barbourville.

Active campaigns have been conducted by McHenry Rhodes, Lexington, and E. C. McDougle, Richmond, in the race for state superintendent of public instruction. Clell Coleman, Harrodsburg; Jordan Owen, Louisville; James Ellis Underwood, Wesleyville, and Roger H. Lillard, Lawrenceburg, are making the race for Commissioner of agriculture, labor and statistics.

In the race for clerks of the court of appeals John A. Goodman, Ellettsville, and James Wagers, Richmond, are making a strong fight.

The race for railroad commissioner, in which both Republicans and Democrats vote, brings out a full field.

SUGAR WILL BRING $70,000,000 TO HAWAII'S COFFEES FOR 1923

HONOLULU, Aug. 4.—"King Sugar," monarch of Hawaiian products, will pour approximately $70,000,000 into the territory this year, an increase of almost 40 per cent over the gross return from this product last year, according to the estimates of prominent planters.

All except a few mills in the territory have completed their grinding for the season; and the combined output is certain to exceed 500,000 tons, a decrease of approximately 100,000 tons from the production of last year, which is laid to the plantation laborers' strike of 1920, when most of the 1923 crop was planted.

The average price for last year's crop, however, was $92.96 a ton, as

DO YOU WONDER?

Asks This Lady, "That I'm a Believer in Cardui?"—Had Been So Weak She Had to Go to Bed.

Osawatimie, Kans.—Mrs. E. E. Keast, formerly of Illinois, residing here, says: "We moved to this state eleven years ago, and I had good health for a long while; and then some year or so ago I had a bad sick spell."

"I got so weak I couldn't go. I couldn't stand on my feet at all. I had to go to bed. I suffered a great deal. I was so nervous I felt I couldn't live. I tried medicines, and everything; had the best of attention, yet I wasn't able to get up. I lay for three months, not able to do anything."

"My husband is a bill poster and has circulars distributed. One day there came to be a Ladies Birthday Almanac among his circulars. I read it, and told some of the family to get me a bottle of Cardui."

"I quit all other medicines and took it (Cardui) faithfully, and two weeks from the time I began to take Cardui I was out of bed—better than for months."

"I kept it up and continued to improve until I was a well woman."

"Do you wonder that I am a believer in Cardui? I certainly am. And I am sure there is no better tonic made for women than Cardui."

compared with this year's estimated average price of between $120 and $140 a ton.

Planters here have pointed out that the value of the Hawaiian sugar crop approximately equals the production of silver in the United States which usually averages between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 annually, although it rose in 1915 to $77,000,000.

Prince John, Third Son May Be Spanish Ruler

PRINCE OF ASTURIAS

PRINCE JOHN

PRINCE JAMES

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Although he has two elder brothers, Spaniards these days are betting that little Prince John, will some day succeed Alfonso XIII as king of Spain. And thereby hangs a tangle tale.

Indeed, tragedy has for so long hung over the Spanish royal house that the members of it have become used to its black shadow.

If the members of the royal family have inherited through the centuries the Hapsburg lip bequeathed to them by some ancestor of the royal house of Austria some other ancestor has left them a worse legacy.

Born a Ruler

After all, a protruding lip is not so bad as ill health and disease. And it's this last that is the cause of the royal family.

In November, 1885, Alfonso XII died as a result of weak lungs. In 1886, some months after his death, there was born to his widow the baby who is now Alfonso XIII. So he is the only reigning monarch who was a king from the day of his appearance in this vale of tears.

The present king seems tough-limbed enough, but it is only by reason of constant exercise, coupled with great care of his health, that he keeps himself fit.

Consult Doctors

But the same care has not succeeded with his two oldest sons. The Prince of the Asturias, who is now 16, and who under ordinary circumstances would be the heir of the throne, has never enjoyed good health.

In fact, the common rumor in Madrid is that the boy is suffering from a spinal disease which makes walking almost impossible. It is generally believed that he is doomed either to early death or to the life of a permanent cripple.

The second son Prince James has for years been very deaf and has also an impediment in his speech. The most famous doctors in Spain, France and England have been consulted, but have not effected much improvement.

In these circumstances, little Prince John, aged 10, who seems to have good health, is being carefully trained with a view to arranging the succession so that he may mount the throne some day.

EVERETT TRUE—By Condo

many of the Spanish princes have been. This is due to the fact that his mother, former Princess of Battenberg, is German and English. Queen Ena was a niece of King Edward VII and consequently a cousin of the present king of England.

FILMS GIVE WRONG IDEA OF AMERICA

Writer Says Cinema Blinds Eyes of European to the Real Americans

By Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 3.—European entertain curious notions about life in the United States. Many of them get their impression from American moving pictures, which feature train robberies, bank hold-ups, social scandals, shooting affairs, exciting automobile episodes, and other equally sensational things.

"From personal observation of American films in British cinemas," says a writer in the London Evening News, "we reach the conclusion that America is a large country entirely surrounded by sin and sentiment. It is inhabited in the east by nescipulous, but enormously successful, business men, who devote their nights to squandering in cabarets their ill-gotten gains of the day before. In the west the bad men rob stage-coaches and banks, shoot sheriffs and their partners in crime, and spend a good deal of time rolling on the ground in attempts to gouge each other's eyes out.

"The north is peopled by bearded scoundrels who go there to escape from the law, to steal mining claims, and to menace lonely girls snowbound in log cabins. The south is notable for cacti, sand, and half-breeds. The last-named are no particular vice. They are just bad.

"The rich women on the east are notable for the scantiness of their costume, their uncharitable attitude towards other women, and for their remarkable bedrooms. These are of enormous size, elaborately decorated, have at least one telephone, and an easy way of egress for heroines and ingress for heroes.

"Sometimes the villain uses one of these entrances, and then the heroine throws a lamp at him and rings up the hero, who was lying awake waiting for the call."

"He dashes round in pajamas and an automobile to her rescue just in time to wake up the household and be covered with suspicion.

"In the west and the south very little work is done. The men of the town hang around the 'store' all day long in case they are wanted for a fight, and the women gossip over fences, so as to be ready to run into the road and welcome home the blood-stained hero.

"America must be an awfully interesting place to live in; only few of us invertebrate Britons could stand the strain of such an exciting life. It isn't so much the amount of work the Americans do as the suddenness with which they do things, that must tell on them in time. Fortunes are made and homes ruined in America on the screen in less time than the average Englishman takes to eat his breakfast."

KENTUCKY DEATH RATE IS LOWER

Report of Vital Statistics Indicates Reduction of Tuberculosis

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 3.—While Europe is fighting to curb the drastic decline in the birth rate and foreign governments fawn against the perils of race suicide, the staid old folk has made his headquarters in Kentucky working overtime, according to the report combined for 1921 and 1922 of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health. The report is just off the press, having been compiled for two years by J. F. Blackley, director of the bureau.

The birth rate of 1921 was the largest ever recorded in Kentucky, being 10 per cent above the average for the United States. Last year there was a slight decline, but still the birth rate in the state was far above the national average.

Last year the mortality rate again went back almost to normal due to the return of influenza, deaths from this disease being greater in both February and March than during the entire previous year.

Birth and death rates for both years, as recorded by the figures were: 1921, births 28, and deaths 10.9, the highest birth rate and the lowest death rate on record in Kentucky; 1922, birth 26.0, deaths, 11.0.

The greatest reduction in deaths from preventable diseases have been in the number from tuberculosis and pneumonia. Little appreciable decline, however, was recorded in 1921 from typhoid fever, dysentery and other intestinal infections. However, last year deaths from these diseases took a big decline due, according to inquiry, from education of the women on the farm and in rural communities in home sanitation and to publicity given by the State Board of Health to means of preventing disease from these causes.

How the First Savings Bank in the World Started

The first savings bank was started by Miss Priscilla Wakefield, in the parish of Tottenham, Middlesex, England, toward the close of the 18th century, her object being mainly to stimulate frugality among poor children. The experiment proved so successful that in 1799 the Rev. Joseph Smith, of Wendon, commenced a plan of receiving small sums from his parishioners during summer and returning them at Christmas, with the addition of one-third as a stimulus to prudence and forethought. Miss Wakefield, in her turn, followed Mr. Smith's example, and in 1804 extended the plan of her charitable bank so as to include adult laborers, female servants and others. A similar institution was formed at Bath, in 1808, by several ladies of that city; and about the same time Mr. Whitbread proposed to Parliament the formation of a national institution, "in the nature of a bank, for the use and advantage of the laboring classes alone," but nothing came of his proposal.

Great Oaks from Little Acorns Grow

It was not until the Rev. Henry Duncan, the minister of Ruthwell, a poor parish in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, took up the subject, that the savings bank system may be said to have become fairly inaugurated. The inhabitants of that parish were mostly poor cottagers, whose average wages did not amount to more than eight shillings a week. There were no manufactures in the district, nor any means of subsistence for the population except what was derived from the land under cultivation; and the land owners were for the most part non-resident. It seemed a very unlikely place in which to establish a bank for savings, where the poor people were already obliged to strain every nerve to earn a bare living, to provide the means of educating their children, (for, however small his income, the Scottish peasant almost invariably contrives to save something wherewith to send his children to school), and to pay their little contributions to the friendly society of the parish. Nevertheless, the minister resolved as a help to his spiritual instructions, to try the experiment and from that grew what is today the great Thrift movement.

The first a dance in the land of the Midnight Sun was remarkably beautiful with every color of the spectrum ever changing from one to another blended in the dancer's robes. The second living studies from the old masters was undoubtedly the best act and the grace and poise of Oberita are particularly commendable. The other acts were living color pictures all very pretty.

This sermon will be a continuation of the one last Sabbath.

Last Sabbath the discussion of the day was around the nature and design of the Sabbath day. Tomorrow the service discussion will hinge upon the friends and enemies of the Sabbath.

The day has many enemies who do not realize it, while many claim to be the friends of the day whose friendship consists of what many friendships are composed of, opportunity to use. They feel amicably disposed towards the day because they can use it.
